Advanced

This collection features 134 videos, covering different content types that will help users instruct, learn, think deeply, and become even more curious. See professional practice in action, such as forensic psychologists working inside a prison, or clinical psychologists treating patients with a variety of mental health conditions. Explore the field's beginnings via footage of John B. Watson or Muzafer Sherif's early experiments. This collection has a great mix of content for both students and end users. 32:06 ROY F. BAUMEISTER [continued]: if they came to another demand for self-control, they did worse on this. The implication being that they used up some of their willpower on the first task. And so, well, this energy, this willpower for self-control-- self-control is tremendously important in so many outcomes in life. So we said, well this is a really important part of the psyche, part of the self.

32:27 ROY F. BAUMEISTER [continued]: But I wondered if it
